me: I don't know about financing Andrew: obviously me: it need not have a high budget me: lol me: I AM INFORMING YOU OF MY FINANCIAL LACK OF SENSE Andrew: just curious Andrew: call me when that number comes in me: I don't know yet, still doing treatment Andrew: hence the future tene me: yeah, I dunno me: I'm not really in the "biz" me: the "industry"
me: jakjajajjaajajjaajaj Andrew: yes, jajaja and all that me: yes, yes
Andrew: where's the beef, though?
Andrew: where's the beef?
me: classified
Andrew: can you bring that one back? me: oh, also me: my gf's roommate me: who's a knowitall coder me: says MIT can crack any code in an hour me: and that there is no such thing as encryption that can't be cracked right now me: is that BS?
me: because the guy also thought Minecraft was an FPS when I tried to show it to him Andrew: yes me: that's what I thought Andrew: that is bullshit Andrew: but more to the point me: that guy talks lots of noise Andrew: its far too general Andrew: MD5 can be cracked with a good cluster in under an hour Andrew: but has been known to be deficient for years Andrew: SHA-2, blowfish et all are all still theoretically open form problems with sufficiently complex passwords me: the one on your arm
